Not illustrated. 1856 Excerpt: .It will be entertaining to you to have a book, and to set down what you have paid out. It will teach you accounts. It will shew you how much has gone foolishly, and so will teach you to be wiser in time to come. The duty of giving something to the poor and to other good objects is very plain. Indeed, my last letter to you was on this subject. It is just as true of you now, as it will be when you come to have thousands, if you ever should, that you are a steward of God s property, and that you must give account to him. CHAPTER XXIL Did you ever take notice that some children behave themselves worst when they are abroad 1 Like little eye-servants, they are dutiful enough while their parents are looking on, but very rude and disobedient when they are with other people. This should make you very careful to be as thoughtful about your conduct in the absence of your parents as in their presence. It will be very long, I hope, before your mother will allow you to make fashionable calls, or to go into company. Much of what is so called, is part of that worldly vanity which true Christians ought not to countenance. But, even if conducted in a religious manner, visiting is hot the thing for young girls. I do not mean that you should not go sometimes to see your young...
